End of Week:

- I. This week I accomplished:
Working on sending a simple text message to a remote server and receiving a message back.

- II. This week I had problems with the following:
Understanding class syntax, switch statements, and arrow functions which Alex used in his sample code.

- III. What I learned this week:
I learned how to open the websocket and send data to the server, but I still need to work on parsing the message and sending a different one back.
